

Messages for the Full Moon of April 2011

Today is Friday, April 15, 2011 and Carolyn and I are here to take messages in relation to this coming full moon, which will be with us on the 17th in some areas and on the 18th in others, and the first to bring forth a message will be Jeshua, and so let us see what Jeshua has to say to us. And he is here and he is saying;

My dear friends, there has been so much change beginning to emerge upon your planet. You have seen the major earthquake in Japan and the ongoing challenges that confront the Japanese, not only with the nuclear reactor but also with the ongoing not just tremors, indeed further earthquakes as that major shift is being accommodated. And there is a great deal of change beginning to emerge in many other ways, because you have entered the time when these changes will accelerate greatly, because it is a relatively short window that we now have between now and the end of 2012 in which the planet needs to prepare herself, in which Gaia needs to work with the planet, so that the planet is fully prepared for what is unfolding. And make no mistake; what is unfolding is the Ascension of the consciousness of the planet and all upon it, beginning with that solstice of December 2012.

This full moon continues to add energies to this unfolding process, and I will add that you have entered a time when the energies coming to the planet are not restricted to these major events. You will be aware that the level of activity on the Sun has accelerated greatly, just as I foretold you over a year ago, and these sunspots, this activity is bringing forth a great deal of additional energy to the planet, to assist with its acceleration, to assist with its preparation, and I wanted to mention this so that you understand that you are now in a time of rapid change energetically, and so those of you that are particularly sensitive to these incoming energies will be aware of almost ongoing changes in the energies coming to the planet. And for the most part I will simply say that the energies coming in with this full moon are simply progressing that which has been planned. These energies build upon all that has gone before, and so in one sense this full moon is just another full moon, there is nothing special about it from the point of view of conjunctions with a solstice or an equinox; however because of the time that this full moon is happening, that is in April of 2011, the impact of these energies will indeed be great because the platform has already been put in place where large amounts of energy can come through these gateways and make significant additional change. You are on what I might call an exponential curve in terms of the rate of change of the energies coming to the planet, and so what can be brought through and what is being brought through this full moon gateway is a great deal more than could have been brought through in April 2010, because so much has changed since that time. And so I do not wish to single out particular elements to focus on, I simply wish to mention that these energies are powerful and enhance the changes which are unfolding and will continue to unfold and to accelerate as you approach the end of 2012. And so it is.

Carolyn - And so it is. And my dear friends, there is a symbol that I see, and it is what you would call an alabaster jar; and for those of you who know the story of Jeshua and Mary Magdalene, you would be aware that Mary Magdalene has been known as the woman with the alabaster jar, and in that jar of alabaster was the sweetest scent, the sweetest liquid that brought honour to her Beloved. It was composed of a very expensive ointment, Spikenard, as it was a very special honour that she used this to anoint her Beloved. It was a symbol, yes; it was an honour, yes; however it also interacted with his energy field. She was proclaiming him as something special, her master, not in the sense that we understand a master who is lording it over someone else, but rather the honour of giving someone that designation, as she was completely dedicated to him in love, honour, blessings, everything that he represented and everything that she represented, because it was an indication of this harmonious union, where the two of them together could accomplish much. They could travel the cosmos in this sacred union. You might say it was a symbol of the divine feminine; the cosmic viewer of the male, who could see deeply into the cosmos and bring back what was helpful and needed for the two of them as she held the space.

And so she has come today with that symbol. Spikenard is not in the alabaster jar, but it is a receptacle of great energy, and she holds this out to you, that each and every one of you should be reminded, not only of Ascension, not only of rejuvenation, not only of the planet moving ahead in this magnificent glory of a perfected state, but Mary Magdalene reminds us that each and every one of us is in that place now, in that place where the doors of the great wisdom of the eons of life here on this planet, the struggles of humanity; and it is a symbol of humanity's greatness, as there will be changes in the physical body as yes, as my Beloved said, there will be challenges, but I offer to you what is represented by the end of the challenges, this great anointing of spirit. And she says;

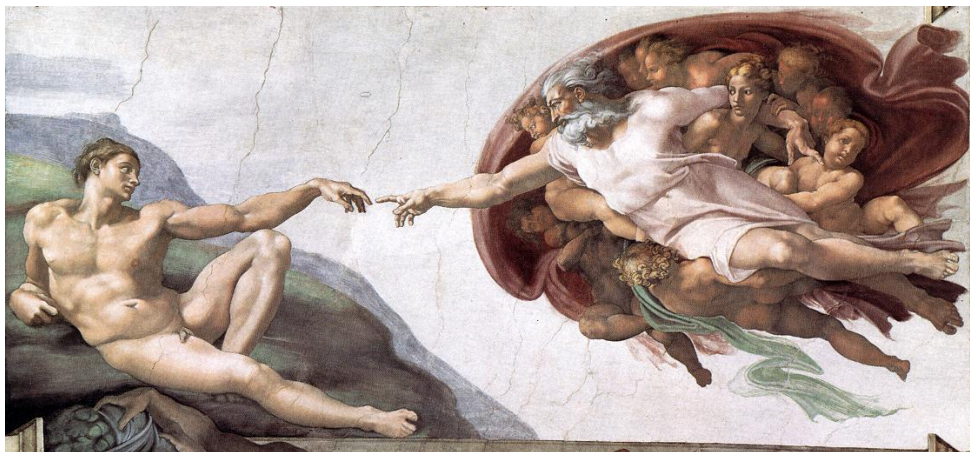

I hold the space for humanity. The jar that I bring is just a symbol. Place your awareness though, at that moment if you are able, when I anointed my Beloved, and I hand you the same anointing, though it is represented in energy. Know that as the capacity of your heart opens, that heart center; the heart chakra, the heart mind and the beating heart, is the central essence of what I would call your Divinity. See the triangle, see the threefold flame and I will feed that with the energy that I hold in my alabaster jar. It is the time to be fed the energy of this great wisdom that you are presently awakening to, this wisdom, this awareness, this step up the progression of a ladder that expands so far. All of your capabilities are there. It is a case of activating your memory, so you can again claim, again claim my dearest ones, your abilities, the awareness of your abilities, and the nobility of who and what you are.

And so my alabaster jar holds the energies for this month, and it will continue to accumulate the energies over the next months. And I am to remind you, you are the receptacle, I am the reminder. It is a marriage ceremony for you, too. I anointed my Beloved at our marriage ceremony, and I give you the vehicle, the vehicle my beloveds, of your own ceremony, joining your heart, joining your love, firing that threefold flame so it burns in a brilliance, so the flame expands, expands and contains your entire being. And you will know soon, as the months go by as, the energy's accumulated, you will see the pathway to what you are, and you will start to understand who you are. And for now, concentrate upon that threefold flame; allow it to grow in brilliance; allow it to be fed with the energies that are coming forth this month. You may not see them, but in truth you should be feeling them, at least the beginning of what lies before you, that platform holding the divine love that connects you to all of the creativity that exists. Hold yourself as those special beings who hold the energies of love in a way that no-one else is able to accomplish. This is a special place, a special time, a special gateway. I offer my love to all of you. And so it is.

Richard - And Father God has come forth with a message that he wishes to share with us in connection to the messages from Jeshua and Mary Magdalene, and he is saying;

The energies that come through the sun are very important for what is unfolding upon your planet, and so I wanted to take this opportunity to explain to you a little of how all of this works. As Jeshua mentioned, he came forth about a year ago and gave you a message about how there would be increasing sunspot activity, and indeed that is what has happened as you may have noticed. If you track these things, there has only been one day this year where there has been no sunspots facing your side and this is a dramatic change from 2010, and that indeed was a dramatic change from 2009, and so you can see there has been a dramatic acceleration. And if you watch what has been happening, last year there were one, perhaps two sunspots present on any given day, whereas this year you will see that there are at times four or five or six sunspots present upon the side of the sun facing you, and so the level of activity has accelerated tremendously and this will continue through until the end of 2012.

And as some of the messages that have been given to you express, the key energies that come to the planet at this time come through the sun. Yes, there are other energies which are present such as the Eye of Isis energies, which come directly from Source in the centre of the cosmos, and that energy is like a searchlight which travels around the cosmos. About once every million years it is in a location such as this. So there are those energies which are in place, however the more specific energies which come forth to ramp up the preparation process all come through the sun; and so how this works is that the energies are sent from the centre of the cosmos, for the most part and they travel a set path to reach the sun here in this solar system, which is under my supervision because that is part of my responsibility, to oversee the husbanding of these energies, and so these energies are passed through, along a chain if you will, that see these energies arrive at the time that they were planned to be released. They are not stored in the sun. The sun is a transformer in a sense. The energies are sent through to the sun and their nature is adjusted and tuned so that it is at the right intensity, of the right nature to be absorbed beneficially by the planet itself and by all upon it.

And so in a sense the sun is a transformer as well as being a director, because whilst there is a general broadcast of energy which is coming from the sun, which you feel as heat, and some of you are aware that prana comes forth from sun, and there is this broad spectrum of energy which is continuously broadcast, a spectrum which is also being amended and adjusted as events unfold, so there are these specific mechanisms by which blasts of energy can be sent forth. Sunspots are one of those mechanisms and the other are what you call coronal mass ejections or CMEs, which receive less publicity since they are less visible if you will, than the sunspots though they are just as important as the sunspot activity. And so the sun has these mechanisms by which we can direct energy to the planet at specific times as it arrives; and so what is this seemingly random unfolding of sunspots and CMEs on the surface of the sun is far more directed and controlled and planned than is immediately obvious to those observing them upon your planet. Few have recognised that there is a correlation that occurs with these major events. There have been many times over the last two years where there have been either important active CMEs or important sunspots sending powerful energies to the planet at the time of the equinoxes and solstices and major full moons. This is all coordinated so that the energies that are necessary to come to the planet for all of this preparation is undertaken as planned, and so the sun plays this key role in the bringing forth of these energies.

And so I wanted you to understand this in this high level manner, to bring it into your awareness because you may like to observe as we move forward how the sunspot activity and the CME activity is correlated with these gateways that you recognise, these full moons, and indeed the new moons and also the solstices and equinoxes and so on. So you may watch this a little more closely as a result of this message, and you will observe that there is a significant sunspot which is currently sending energies to your planet. Even though it may not send forth a major flare, it is a major sunspot and it is broadcasting key energies to the planet as part of this event. So you can examine this, you can see this by simply pulling up that wondrous information that is now available to you, which shares with you the activity upon the sun, available to anyone via the Internet (<http://www.spaceweather.com/>). And so I wanted to add this as, you could say an appendix to the messages for this full moon. And so it is.
