

Where's the evidence for a 2012 event?

I have noticed recently a trend on Internet forums where people are beginning to ask for tangible evidence of an event at the end of 2012 which transforms consciousness on Earth. Lots of talk, but where's the hard evidence in this physical domain?

This quest is being exacerbated by those discussion groups where amazing claims are being made about interdimensional beings saving the world in the nick of time... Entertaining but without evidence. Not only that, occasionally they slip up and actually forecast something that can be measured or seen and nothing happens. A couple of examples are the decloaking of lightships on October 14, 2008, a widespread forecast, another being a forecast that the US stockmarket would be closed when the DOW fell below 7,200. Was it closed? Nope. And it went as low as 6,440 in early March 2009, which amusingly was within a few weeks of the prediction - a surprise given the rapid fall of some 1,500 points in about four weeks. Not that that seems to have disillusioned most of the dedicated coterie of that particular fount of fascination.

So, I sense a little fatigue setting in as a result of "no" tangible evidence. In truth, there is quite a deal of evidence, but not of the sort that is going to turn the head of the man or woman in the street. And, in my view, that evidence is needed, since this event will impact everyone on the planet and preparation is needed.

On June 28th there was an excellent posting by Mike O'Hare at <http://tinyurl.com/mxz2g> (you will need to register to read this, but it's free and a great group discussing 2012 issues), which, for me crystallised this sentiment. I was thus drawn to respond and on reflection felt that response may be of broader interest, so I am sharing it here.

Dear Mike,

Thank you for your cogently argued, well informed and well written contribution. I am excited that the clarion call that you are expressing is showing up in many places across the 'net.

Show me the evidence!!

To get closer to "home", Y2K is not that long ago, where not only were the world's computers expected to crash, but many were forecasting great Earth changes. People were stockpiling food, setting up backup generators, the whole nine yards. I was caught up in it, with the prognostications of the likes of Gordon Michael Scallion and others.

Talk about anticlimactic. In case you missed the intensity of the silence, it was not just those computer systems where all the focus had been to fix them that survived, there was not a whimper from those in the countries where not a finger was lifted to address the "Y2K bug". And the Earth changes?? The silent absence of anything whatsoever happening was deafening.

Many embarrassed new-agers spent months consuming stockpiles of canned and other food they didn't particularly enjoy... And how quickly we forget.

So why is this any different, and given the variety of prognostication, if something is happening, who is accurate, if any? As someone sticking their neck out on 2012, I'm drawn to introduce myself a little, to elucidate my stance.

My journey has included a PhD in Materials Engineering, something you don't do without a fair exposure to the scientific process. I was a very left brained guy running a successful IT business in Australia in the early 90's, when an epiphany of sorts struck me as I realised all the "real world" success I had created (successful business, a millionaire, a beautiful, intelligent wife and children, well respected, Ferrari driving.... you get the picture) was to seek to fill a hole I felt inside me - a hole I had not realised I was there until that moment - a double whammy. I assure you, the left brain does not know what to do with that kind of experience.

So began a search that saw me completely deconstruct my prior existence in short order, to find myself in a few short years broke, divorced, in a yoga cult and wondering what the answer was to this puzzle called my life.

There is much more to this story, however the reason I mention this is I bring some highly analytical skills and a high degree of scepticism to anything that seeks to indicate the future - both my own and that of the world. And yet, today, I stand here as a powerful advocate of a particular scenario awaiting us at the end of 2012.

So how did I get here? One of things that transformed for me was my dependence on my left brained modality. I did not abandon it, simply complemented it. And life forced me to (I should mention I see us all as the creator of our own realities, our own lives) to develop a trust of my intuition. It became and still is my most important life tool. It is the only thing that got me forward.

In forming my view of the 2012 event, I have worked closely with Carolyn Evers, a channel for the Masters for over 20 years - www.carolynevers.com. So how did this evolve? Firstly, it was my intuition that led me to participate in Carolyn's conference calls with Archangel Michael in early 2007 and I tell you the sceptic was firmly in place. So, how to validate?

Firstly, the opportunity arose after a couple of months to ask questions of Archangel Michael and when I did so, the answers shocked me. They were so clearly about me and displayed knowledge of me that I thought no-one in any dimension knew apart from me - certainly not Carolyn Evers. I have kept parts of me very private - and he knew those parts... So, I began some more detailed analysis. How do you validate a channel? For me, the only way was to look for verifiable evidence; the type of proof, if you like, that you are currently looking for regarding 2012 and all that goes with it. So, I went looking through Carolyn's channelled material for things that were spoken of in the physical domain and sought to verify them.

I spend some of my eBook "The Coming Golden Age and How to Prepare for it" - www.thecominggoldenage.com presenting this analysis, but let me give you a couple of examples here:

Human blood on a statue of the Virgin Mary

On April 23, 2006 Carolyn Evers received a channelled message from Mother Mary . It began;

"I have tried to call my children in the United States in Sacramento, California, but the interest has waned. Red rivers of blood came forth from my statue, but the church representatives would not test the blood on the statue to indicate if it were human blood or just a red dye placed there by some individual who wanted to get attention. I am trying very hard to have my children notice me and return to their faith and get closer to their God-selves, but I wasn't successful.

"Again, I have tried another country, and perhaps they will believe. And I might say that in Malta the church leaders did test the blood on the statue and declared that it was, indeed, human. Hopefully, this information will spread around the globe, but I do not think so. This will stay a local oddity. Imagine, I show signs of my motherly love to my children, and the world calls this a local oddity.

"Times are quickly upon you that the Earth beneath your feet will be disruptive. I cry out to you to be in love, as that is the only force that will save you from great destruction. I do not come to have you mouth signs of ritual and express belief systems of dogma, but rather I come to engender the force of love within your hearts. It is the open heart that will protect you. It is your heart full of love that will open your connection to your I AM Presence which will lead you to safety."

A report from Malta was as follows;

Curia confirms human blood on statue of Virgin Mary

By MaltaMedia News
Apr 21, 2006, 12:42 CET

Email this article
Printer friendly page

The Archbishop's Curia has confirmed that human blood was oozing from the eyes of the statue of the Virgin Mary in a private residence in the last few weeks.

A spokesman for the Curia said in a statement that the first report was examined by the Church Authorities and it transpired that the red liquid was human blood.

The same phenomenon was reported a few weeks later and this second incident is still being investigated, the spokesman said.

Local newspaper In-Nazzjon on Friday revealed that the statue is in a private residence in Birzebbugia.

The owner of the statue of the Immaculate Conception reported the weeping of the red liquid to the parish priest on Monday. The latter advised the owner to report to the Curia.

© Copyright 2006 - MaltaMedia Online Network

Changes on Earth

There is also some strong evidence related to changes on Earth. On p72 of Viva Papa, Pope John Paul II says the following:

"Awaken from the sleep of a world of commerce and self-indulgence. Remember. Go within and question the next time you hear of an Earthquake and unusual lights in the sky. The northern lights of the aurora borealis have been sighted in strange places. The reason for this is that the energy from the sun has been stepped up and the electrons of the solar wind have intensified so that these lights and energies have been seen by many as a new phenomenon. Make note of these two occurrences and then go within. I am here to point you in the right direction."

If you go to NASA's website, you will find a report headed The Day the Solar Wind Disappeared. Quoting from this site:

From May 10-12, 1999, the solar wind that blows constantly from the Sun virtually disappeared -- the most drastic and longest-lasting decrease ever observed.

Dropping to a fraction of its normal density and to half its normal speed, the solar wind died down enough to allow physicists to observe particles flowing directly from the Sun's corona to Earth. This severe change in the solar wind also changed the shape of Earth's magnetic field and produced an unusual auroral display at the North Pole.

Starting late on May 10 and continuing through the early hours of May 12, NASA's ACE and Wind spacecraft each observed that the density of the solar wind dropped by more than 98%. Because of the decrease, energetic electrons from the Sun were able to flow to Earth in narrow beams, known as the strahl. Under normal conditions, electrons from the Sun are diluted, mixed, and redirected in interplanetary space and by Earth's magnetic field (the magnetosphere). But in May 1999, several satellites detected electrons arriving at Earth with properties similar to those of electrons in the Sun's corona, suggesting that they were a direct sample of particles from the Sun.

This matches with what Pope John Paul II spoke of. (This event is now discussed in more detail at http://www.the2012countdown.com/The_2012_Time_Line.php).

So, these are a couple of examples and working in this way, I began to develop a trust for what Carolyn Evers was bringing forth. So, my partnership of the analytical sceptic and the intuitive were aligning. At the same time, as I also say in my eBook, I began to feel as though some gear wheels inside me that had for so long not engaged with each other began to align. It is hard to express how this felt, after the best part of 15 years when everything I touched seemingly turned to dust in my hands business-wise, where almost no healing work I did touched me, when I could see others gaining great benefits...

So I continued to investigate this and gradually our dialogue unfolded and the truth of what Carolyn was bringing forth became clearer and clearer to me. Another interesting test of this is that Carolyn brought forth a number eBooks from the Masters in 2005 and 2006, along with many, many other readings and although she knows much more about who she is today, none of what came forth then is inconsistent with what is coming forth now. If you have examined the channelling space as I have, you will realise how rare that is.

And so it was one step after another. Our work together really began with the eBooks of Steve Fossett - I share this somewhat bizarre story at www.stevfossettmessages.com - and has continued to unfold. The vision of November 2008 relating to the crop circle patterns from Avebury of July 2008 shared at http://www.iamjeshuareturned.com/the_means_of_the_trigger.html was a milestone and in its own way led to the development of our 2012 website at www.the2012countdown.com.

So, all of this is very interesting. Where, might you ask, apart from the somewhat esoteric evidence of a crop circle pattern in England last year, is the tangible, physical evidence that I can touch and feel that supports all of this? It is to me, no accident that you and others are raising this question at this time. I sense we are on the cusp of seeing evidence in the world that will support what is an unimaginable shift in consciousness on our planet, a shift that is not isolated to Earth, but is a pivotal point in the evolution of consciousness across the cosmos. Strong words, I agree.

We have only 3 ½ short years to prepare, so it needs to come soon. We all have a lot of work to do.

And if my intuition on this is accurate, we will not have to wait very long. Perhaps only a few days...

Richard Presser

30/06/2009